

Access Policy for District Owned Lands

1.0 BACKGROUND

The Eastern Irrigation District (EID) owns approximately 600,000 acres of land within the County of Newell. This land base is vital to the overall operations of the EID as it supports water storage and conveyance, cattle grazing, industrial development, research activities, provides a diverse range of habitat for wildlife and, when possible, allows public recreational opportunities.

These lands are widely dispersed within the County of Newell and are easily accessible off the public and private road network. From time to time, this accessibility creates a number of management concerns for the EID such as grass fires, disturbance to livestock, litter, uncontrolled pets, camping, off-highway vehicle use and other environmental damage.

To help mitigate these risks and protect EID lands while still allowing public use, the EID has adopted this policy to manage public access.

2.0 TYPES OF EID LANDS

In the context of public access there are three types of EID lands. Community Pastures (also known as "Grazing Association" and "Swing Fields"), Right-of-Ways, and Private Leases. EID lands not identified as one of these three types may have varying purposes and access restrictions.

- (a) Contact the EID Land Administrator – Habitat, Wildlife & Access for more information.

2.1 Community Pastures

Community Pastures represent the largest type of EID lands. The primary purpose of these lands is to provide summer grazing for cattle owned by eligible EID water users. Secondary purposes of these lands may include research, public recreational access, and special event access.

- (a) The EID controls all access to these lands. Contact the EID for more information.

2.2 Right-of-Ways

Right-of-Ways represent the second largest type of EID lands. The primary purpose of these lands is water storage and conveyance. These lands may be found under, over and adjacent to EID reservoirs, canals, ditches, drains and pipelines. Secondary purposes of these lands may include research, public recreational access, and special event access.

- (a) The EID controls all access to the lands identified as right-of-ways and in some situations may convert them to Private Lease (Grazing) lands. Contact the EID for more information.
- (b) Contact the EID prior to accessing these lands to ensure they are open to the public.

2.3 Private Leases

Private Leases (Irrigated, Grazing, Business and Community Groups) are the smallest type of EID lands. The primary purpose of these lands is to provide farming and grazing opportunities on unique parcels of land to eligible EID water users and to provide businesses or community groups opportunities associated with the use of unused EID facilities or lands.

- (a) The EID controls all access to the lands identified as Private Leases but defers management of public access to the leaseholders. EID lands under private lease require separate permission from the leaseholder for public access. Contact the EID for more information.

3.0 TYPES OF ACCESS

Types of access permitted on EID lands include, but are not limited to:

3.1 Cattle Management Access

Access for the purposes of cattle management is associated with fence construction or maintenance, watering system construction or maintenance, cattle round up and movement, cattle health checks, cattle feeding, etc. Typically, this access is provided for employees or management of the Grazing Association.

- (a) This includes use of off-highway vehicles and driving highway vehicles off Designated Routes or established trails, when necessary, for cattle management purposes only.
 - (i) Members of the grazing association are only permitted this level of access when accompanied or authorized by EID or Grazing Association staff or management.
- (b) Special arrangements for cattle management access, beyond what is provided in this Policy, can be made with the EID Land Administrator – Grazing. In this regard, a cattle trailing permit is available upon request.

3.2 Commercial and Industrial Access

Commercial and Industrial Access is access for activities such as oil and gas exploration and development, power generation and transmission, research and development, construction and operation of non-renewable and renewable energy projects, facility construction, operation and maintenance, and any other activities approved by the District.

- (a) Provided a lease or some other form of access agreement has been entered into with the EID, highway vehicles and off-highway vehicles are permitted on all types of EID lands for these purposes.
- (b) Contact the EID Land Supervisor for more information or for agreements.

3.3 EID Access

Access by EID staff and authorized representatives is permitted for all land and water management purposes. This includes use of off-highway vehicles, driving highway vehicles off Designated Routes or established trails, and controlling other third party activities prohibited or restricted by this policy when necessary.
